For Parents

EDUSS provides an affordable, proven method for you to help your children catch up and stay on track in their grade levels. Used in schools across the country as an aid to teachers, why not provide it directly to your children?

Teachers use the unique EDUSS engine to find gaps in children's education so they can learn what they have missed, even if that means going back to the first day they started school. The gaps are created because of a range of reasons anything from moving to a new school to the class as a whole moving on too quickly from concept to concept. Parents can now use the same program, to make sure their child has the tools to move forward with confidence.

Parents who are wondering why their son or daughter is struggling now have a method proven in schools to find out what concepts the child is missing. The assessment is free, and the online programs necessary to teach those concepts and bring the child up to speed so that school is not a struggle are completely affordable. It's a win-win for everyone.

If a child is struggling to keep up with classwork, it's probably because there are concepts, for instance in math, that have not sunk in yet. But most teachers can't take the time to find out exactly what concepts an individual child is missing so they can bring them up to speed – they have to move on. With EDUSS, no one has to be in the position of falling behind. With a free assessment program, and online coursework at only $19.99 per month, we believe every family with a struggling child has a solution.
